Dear Foxy, does coffee have a special story for you?
What kind of coffee do you really like?

Thankyou mr Foxy

Kade

Hi Foxy. I love that you can remember your friends favorite coffee. It means you care your friends a lot.
(For me I don't drink coffee but green tea latte)

Then what's your favorite coffee Foxy?
I might treat you next time.

Wow, it's really bitter!

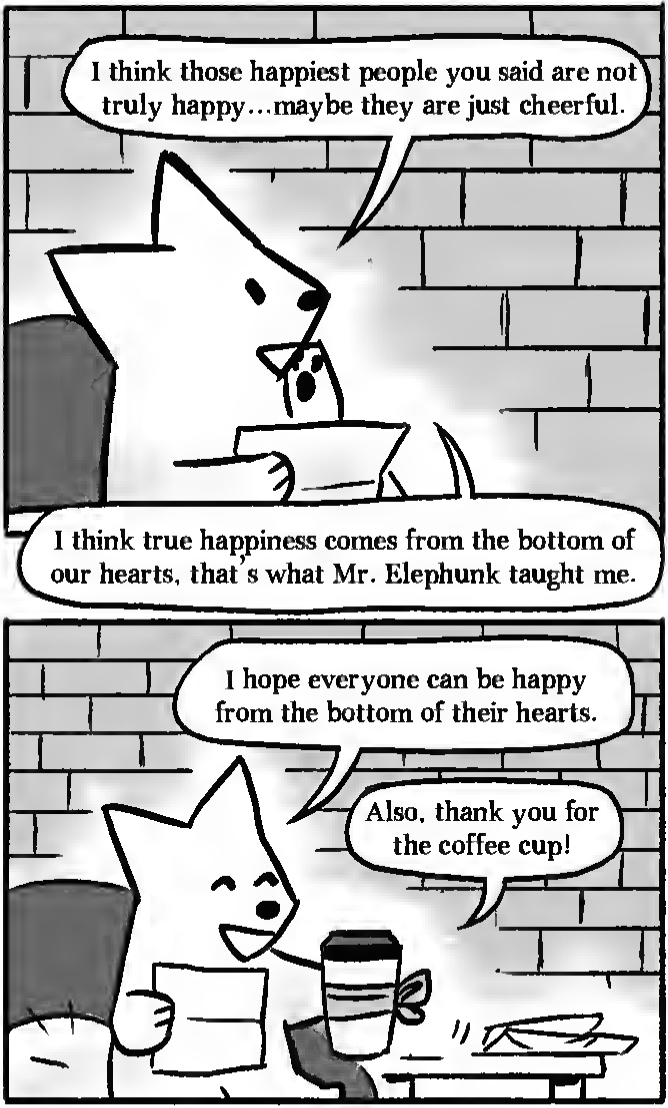
Yes, it's because there are spices in the coffee, and they don't add any sugar or milk.
It's very different from the coffee we use to drink.
Um, I prefer the taste of Caffe Latte.



I think those happiest people you said are not truly happy...maybe they are just cheerful.
I think true happiness comes from the bottom of our hearts, that's what Mr. Elephunk taught me.
I hope everyone can be happy from the bottom of their hearts.
Also, thank you for the coffee cup!

I believe your mother prepared coffee in a traditional way that is uncommon here, so it might be the reason you can't find it.
Wow, you are really knowledgeable, Doglas!

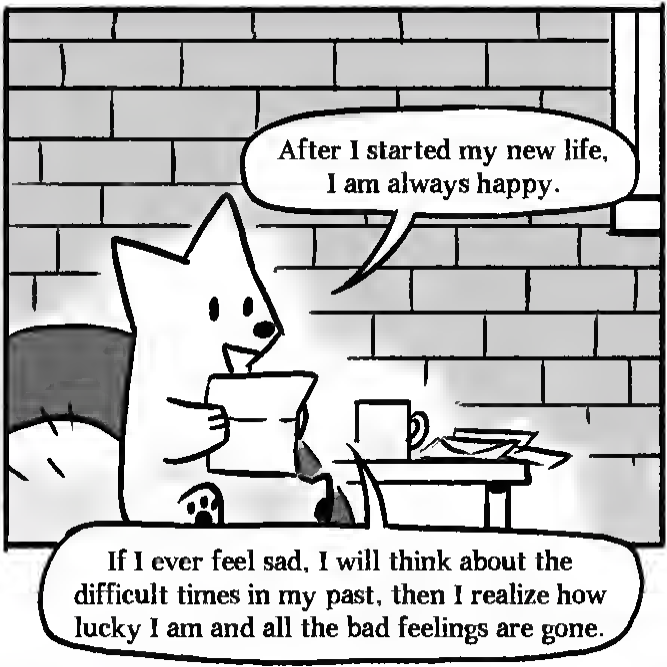
Doglas took me to a small shop that sells special coffee and spices from foreign countries.

There, I found the familiar scent of my mother's coffee.

Ruth Morani Ecklesia

Hi, Foxy! Could you please tell us more about your mom, since you said the other day that your mom is your inspiration to make coffee. She sounds lovely.

And please give this Frank Sinatra's CD to Tiager, hope he likes it!



After I started my new life, I am always happy.
If I ever feel sad, I will think about the difficult times in my past, then I realize how lucky I am and all the bad feelings are gone.

So after I came to live with Mr. Elephunk, I began to look for the special scent of my mother's coffee.

Yes! It's that smell!
snnniff

I have never drunk my mother's coffee before,

so I tried this traditional coffee for the first time.

After I came to work in Roar Street Journal,

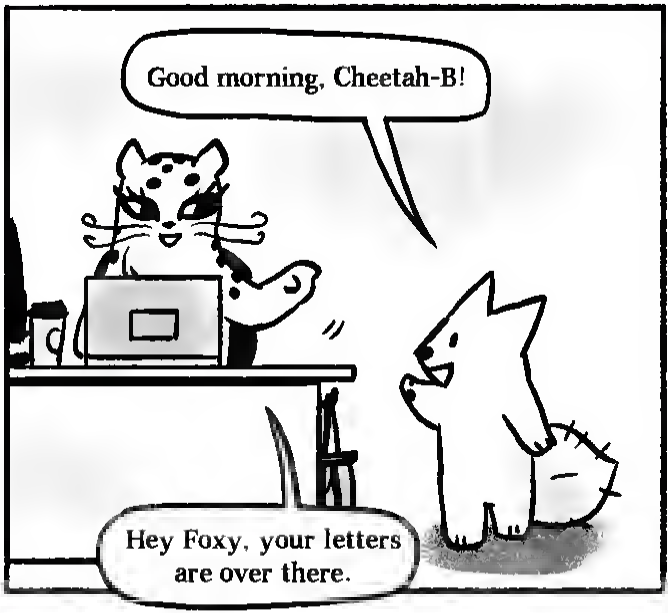
I still kept looking for my mother's coffee.

coffee beans and powder

Assorted chocolate and snacks

I will share them with everyone later!

My mother loved coffee and she used to make it every day, so our house was filled with the wonderful scent of coffee.



Good morning, Cheetah-B!
Hey Foxy, your letters are over there.

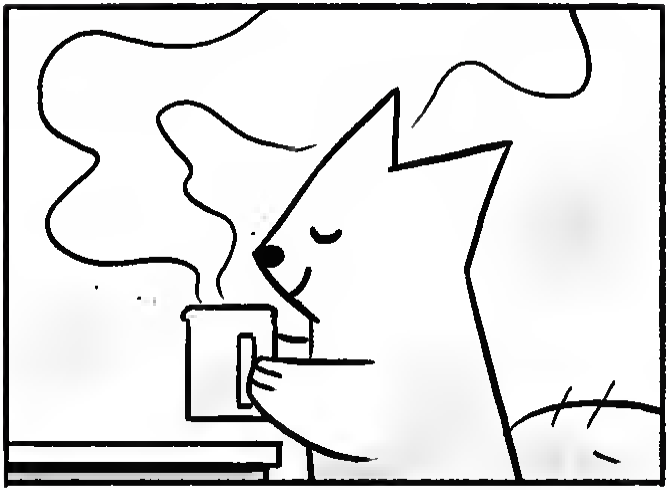
Wow, a hill of letters!

With the coffee beans from my home country,

and the recipe I learned here,

I made my favorite cup of coffee:

a blend of both of my homes.



I visited many coffee shops to look for my mother's coffee. Although I couldn't find it, I became really interested about coffee.

When I was in high school, I went to work at a cafe.

I found a lot of fun in making coffee, and
I really enjoyed seeing the happy faces of customers
when they have a satisfying cup of coffee.

Author's Note

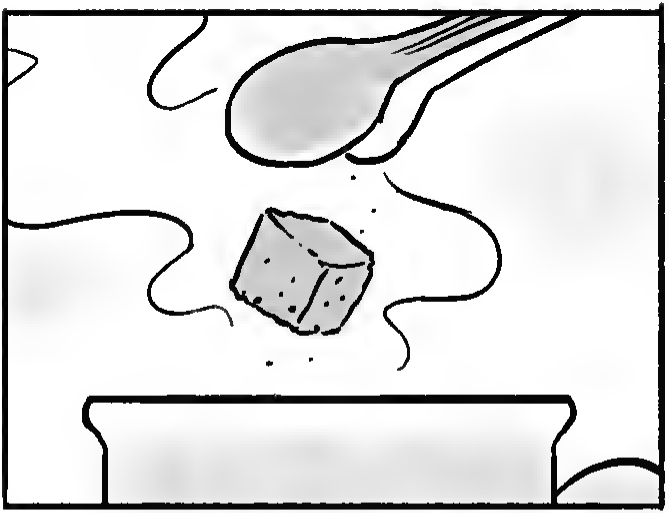
Hi everyone! I hope you enjoyed the Editor's Column episodes so far. I feel that drawing a long story from several letters makes a better episode, because it is more complete and easier to read.

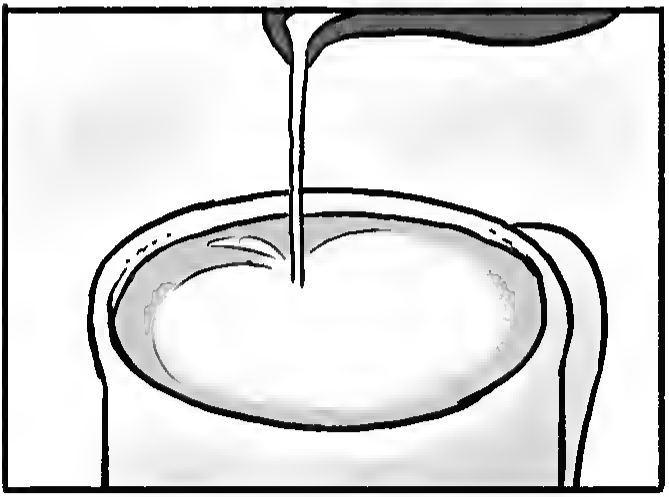
I really appreciate all your letters and I enjoy reading them a lot! They provide inspiration for new stories, so don't worry when I can't answer every one of them. You are all helping me to create the future of Roar Street Journal!

*For example, there wouldn't be Anton's story if you guys didn't ask about Anna's dad in episode 20.

Also, in the comments, I am really happy if you can write a bit about the stories in the Editor's Column episode rather than just asking questions. After all, I want to know what you think about the story! Thank you so much!

Bonnie :)





I can't remember my parents clearly because they were gone when I was very small.

The only thing I remember is the smell of coffee.

And there are many gifts too!
Thank you, lovely readers!

I heard you are looking for a specific kind of coffee, Foxy?
Maybe I can offer some help.

Hmm, if you are from this country, the coffee beans it produces are these...

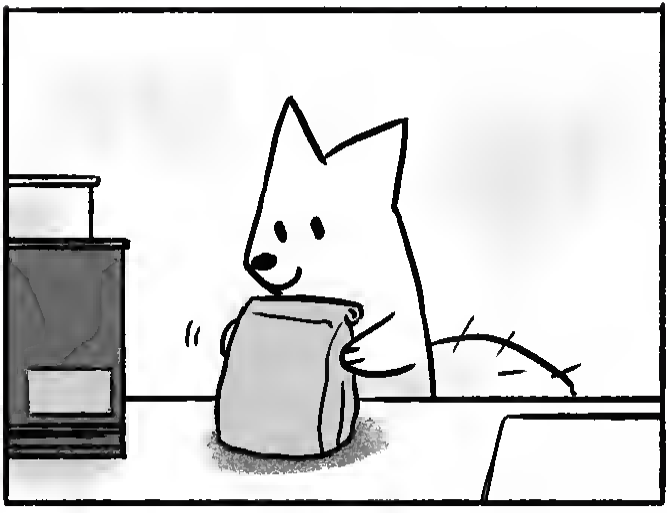
ROAR STREET JOURNAL

After I found my mother's coffee,

I bought that coffee beans to make coffee for myself.



In the next editor's column, Tiager will answer your letters!
Feel free to write to him about art making and music!

Also, don't forget to tell me what you think about my coffee story!

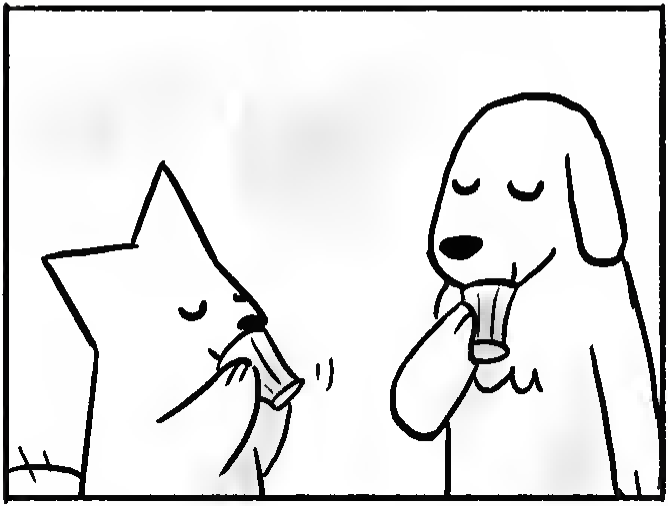
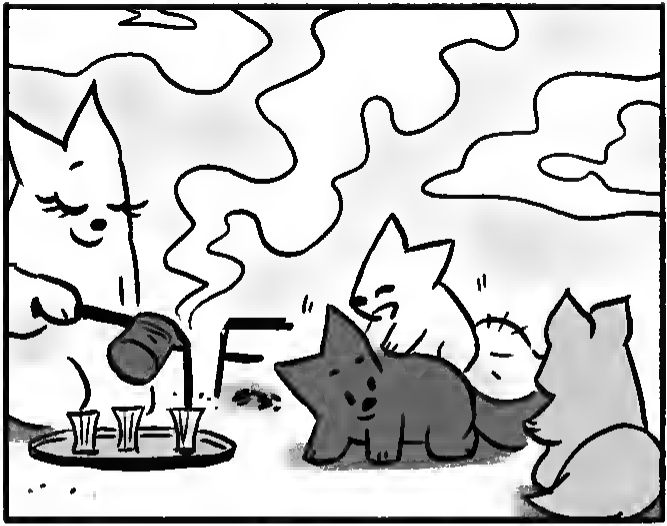
Dear Foxy, It's great to see you always look so positive and happy. However, have you ever feel sad? Well usually, the happiest people are sometimes the saddest. If you do, how do you handle it?

Thank you...Oh almost forget, since you like coffee, I would like to give you a cute coffee cup, so you'll be fresh the whole day! :)





I always wanted to know more about my parents.

But because everything was in a rush in the war,

I couldn't find anything about them.
